JAMES T. HANDLAN, JR., associate dean and professor of biological sciences, has led an interesting and colorful life. For 23 years he was professor and head of the biology department and served as adviser for the Medi-Sci Club and for Phi Sigma Nu Fraternity. For the past 12 years he has served as Associate Dean, and during 1968-69 and again in 1970, he served as Acting President of the college.

Dean received his AB and MS from WVU. In 1937-38 he was an exchange student in Germany, where he did work in biology at the University of Munich. Twice he received National Science Foundation grants for study at Florida State and received a certificate in radiation biology. He taught at Mt. Lake, VA, Biological Station during summers of 1965 and 1966.

He has served on numerous PSC committees; was a member of the University Senate; has helped to develop many of the recent innovations as Special Services; expanded Evening Education; and promoted several new courses. For many years he prepared the college catalog. He is a member of numerous professional associations including Phi Beta Kappa honorary, Phi Epsilon Phi, national botany honorary; and served as president of WV Academy of Science.

Active in the community, he is a charter member of Keyser Kiwanis Club and was its first president; he is active in the Assumption R.C. Church, where he is president of the Parish Council, past president of the Home-School Assn, and a member of the choir. He has been active with the Boy Scouts, belongs to the Gallon Club (Blood Bank), and has served in many other capacities in the county. He holds membership in many community clubs and organizations including president, Potomac Highland Travel Council since 1972. He served on the WV Centennial Celebration committee; on the advisory committee, Developmental Center; on the Greenland Gap Commission; advisory committee, Larenim Park.

He has three children: Jim, Jr., assistant professor of mathematics at Susquehanna University, Selingsgrove, PA; Molly Saunders, Keyser; and Jane Venzke, now in Germany. All are PSC alumni, and there are three grandchildren.

Jim has always shared his love and knowledge of birds and plant life. Retirement will not change that.

A Shinnston native, DAVID G. NUZUM, professor of English, currently assistant to the Dean, Title III, Strengthening Developing Institutions, came with Potomac State in 1938. Prior to coming to Potomac State, he taught at Northview and Norwood Junior High Schools and Shinnston High. His English classes at PSC were among the more popular on campus, and he was respected as being "one of the best."

For 20 years, either alone or with his wife, Leontine, who was also in the English department, he was adviser for the Catamount yearbook (1938-58), and for about 15 years he was in charge of student financial aid.

Prof. Nuzum has AB and MA degrees from WVU and studied a summer at Duke University. From 1943-46 he served with the U.S. Army in the Philippines and took a two-year leave (1959-61) to pursue graduate studies in English and college administration at the U. of Texas under a K. Kellogg Foundation grant. He was Director of Student Affairs from 1961-1974.

His enthusiasm has embraced a number of campus activities as Public Exercises Committee and Long Range Planning. His community contributions seem endless: Presbyterian Church (deacon, elder, teacher, past president Men of the Church); Rotary (past president, past District Governor, and one of three Keyser Rotarians to be named a Paul Harris Fellow); Boy Scouts (chairman, district commissioner, Silver Beaver Award); Keyser-Mineral County Library (past president, chairman, Regional Library Board); Chamber of Commerce (director); County United Way (past president, executive board, Mineral County chairman); American Field Service (president, Keyser chapter); member Highland Arts Unlimited, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Potomac Highland, Huguenot Society. Small wonder he was named Keyser Citizen of the Year in 1956.

He belongs to numerous professional organizations and has many hobbies which include working with wood and traveling. The latter has carried him to Europe, Asia, Africa, and Australia, plus points in between. He is a popular speaker before a variety of groups.

If you have a task to be done, give it to Dave, the busiest man in Keyser. In his retirement he is taking up candle making and should have plenty of time since all his work will be done on wick ends.
